Message from the Minister
September 30, 2010

In accordance with Government's commitment to accountability, I am pleased to submit the annual report of the Women's Policy Office. The report was prepared under my direction and documents the activities and outcomes of the Office from April 1st, 2009 to March 31st, 2010. The outcomes reported reflect Government's strategic directions for the Status of Women portfolio and my signature below is indicative of my accountability for the actual results.

Kathy Dunderdale, MHA
Minister Responsible for the Status of Women

2.0 Organizational Overview

The Women's Policy Office (WPO) was established in 1985 to:

- develop and expedite Government policies and programs to enhance the social and economic status of women in the province and ensure that these are communicated to the public;
- ensure that the impact on women of all legislation, policies and programs is brought to the attention of the Minister Responsible for the Status of Women, Cabinet, Cabinet Committees and departments;
- monitor and review programs and other activities of government departments and agencies to ensure compliance and conformity with the government policy of improving the status of women; and
- liaise with Provincial Government departments and agencies, other governments and advisory councils, and women's organizations on all issues affecting women.

2.1 Vision

The vision of WPO is social, legal, cultural and economic equality for women in the province of Newfoundland and Labrador.

2.2 Mission

Women's equality is yet to be achieved in areas of earned income and employment, social and economic security, leadership and decision making positions. Therefore, the necessity and relevance of WPO and its work continues to exist.

Mission: By 2011, the Women's Policy Office will have contributed to the advancement of women's social, cultural, legal and economic equality in Newfoundland and Labrador.

2.3 Lines of Business

Economic and Social Policy Analysis and Advisory Services: WPO defines policy as any action taken by government. The Office applies gender-based analysis to government policy in such forms as legislation, programs and services. By applying gender-based analysis to government policy, WPO provides advice to departments on how women are affected, how gender equity would be better achieved, as well as identifies needs and gaps.

Information Collection and Communication Services: WPO is responsible for collecting policy-relevant information from a variety of sources to provide evidence-based policy advice and to report annually on the status of women. To meet this responsibility, WPO maintains a library on women's issues available for use by the public, collects statistics and conducts research to assess the current status of women, and identifies systemic inequities and information gaps. As part of the information collection process, WPO consults regularly with women and women's organizations to identify ongoing and emerging issues of special concern, as well as potential solutions. Beyond providing policy advice to government departments, WPO communicates information on the status of women through publications, events and initiatives.

Violence Prevention Initiative Services: The Violence Prevention Initiative (VPI) reflects Government's commitment to addressing the problem of violence in this province. The Initiative is a six-year, multi-departmental, government-community partnership to find long-term solutions to the problem of violence against those most at risk in our society - women, children and youth, older persons, Aboriginal women and children, persons with disabilities and other vulnerable people who are victims of violence because of their race, age, ethnicity, sexual orientation or economic status. Ten regional coordinating committees have been established to ensure representation from rural areas.

Grants Program: WPO provides non-repayable grants to equity seeking groups for activities and initiatives to advance the status of women in Newfoundland and Labrador. The Grants are subject to approved criteria.

2.4 Physical Location

WPO is located in St. John's on the fourth floor of the Confederation Building, West Block. It contracts delivery of services to St. John's, Bay St. George, Port aux Basques, Corner Brook, Gander, Labrador City, Happy Valley-Goose Bay and Grand Falls-Windsor through eight Status of Women Councils located across the province, as well as through ten regional coordinating committees associated with the VPI:

- Western Regional Coalition to End Violence
- Southwestern Coalition to End Violence
- Central West Committee Against Violence
- The Roads to End Violence
- Eastern Regional Committee Against Violence

During 2009-10, WPO continued to work with Human Resources Division of Executive Council and the Public Service Secretariat to undertake a review of the current organizational structure of the Office. The review was required given expanded work requirements in the last few years, in the following areas:

- implementation of a Violence Prevention Initiative
- implementation of an Aboriginal Women's program
- increased and improved stakeholder and client relationships
- new accountability, financial, administrative and planning requirements

During 2006, a Workforce Plan was developed to support the implementation of the Business Plan. The recommendations in this plan identified the need for the organizational review.

All the staff at the Women's Policy Office are currently female.

2.6 Expenditures

In 2009-10 the expenditures of the Women's Policy Office were approximately $4,406,100, which included the expenditures for the Violence Prevention Initiative. As indicated in the diagram below, grants to community-based organizations accounted for approximately 56 per cent of the budget. The expenditures for 2009-10 were an increase of $493,800.00 over the 2008-09 expenditures.

3.0 Shared Commitments

The mandate and mission of WPO can only be achieved through working in partnership with the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women, Status of Women Councils, Regional Violence Prevention Coordinating Committees, other equality-seeking groups, as well as federal and provincial government departments and agencies, industry and educational partners.

In 2009-10, WPO strengthened community-government partnerships to prevent violence through increased funding for the implementation of the six-year VPI Plan of Action. Government partners include the Departments of Justice; Health and Community Services; Education; Human Resources, Labour and Employment; Child, Youth and Family Services; and Labrador and Aboriginal Affairs. Partners also include the Rural Secretariat, Newfoundland and Labrador Housing Corporation, the Labour Relations Agency and Regional Integrated Health Authorities. Community partners include the ten regional coordinating committees, the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women, the Newfoundland and Labrador Sexual Assault Crisis and Prevention Centre, the Transition House Association of Newfoundland and Labrador, the Seniors Resource Centre of Newfoundland and Labrador and the Citizen's Crime Prevention Association of Newfoundland and Labrador.

WPO worked in partnership with the Departments of Human Resources, Labour and Employment; Natural Resources; and Environment and Conservation to increase women's employment in well-paying jobs, particularly those in the natural resource sectors. This is largely done using the Environmental Protection Act, which requires proponents of large scale natural resource developments to put women's employment plans in place. To this end, WPO worked closely with industry partners such as the Women in Resource Development Committee, Voisey's Bay Nickel Corporation and other proponents.

WPO also worked in partnership with the Department of Human Resources, Labour and Employment to continue exploring the need of employment supports for victims of violence. The Office has also been an active member on the Deputy Minister's and Ministerial working committees on poverty reduction, as well as youth retention and attraction. WPO also participated with the Department of Health and Community Services to provide advice on long-term care supports and healthy living initiatives for women, the aging and seniors.

To improve women's social and economic security, WPO worked closely with all provincial government departments to ensure that the impact on women of all legislation, policies and programs were brought to the attention of decision makers. WPO maintained a close relationship with Status of Women Canada as well as all ministries in Canada responsible for the status of women.

WPO partnered with regional and provincial women's groups such as the regional Status of Women councils, and the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women and the Multicultural Women's Organization of Newfoundland and Labrador, as well as Aboriginal groups and governments to strengthen women's voices and increase women's participation in policy development relating to government's policies, programs and services. The Office also worked with government departments to increase nominations of qualified women to agencies, boards and commissions in the province.

Approximately 200 people attended the conference, which featured the Honourable Joan Burke, Minister of Child, Youth and Family Services, as the keynote speaker on preventing violence against children in this province.

4.3 Violence Prevention Grants Program for Aboriginal Women

In 2009-10, the Minister Responsible for the Status of Women awarded funding under the Aboriginal Women's Violence Prevention Grants program for the following projects ($200,000 total annually):

- The Sheshatshiu Innu First Nation: $21,500 to support preparation for the participation of Innu women in a women's gathering in St. Augustine, Quebec. The Innu women were provided with first-hand information about violence prevention in home situations.
- The Labrador Métis Nation: $22,000 for interactive workshops that provided participants an opportunity to gain an overall understanding of wellness and self-esteem. Printed information was available for participants. To ensure the workshops were professionally sound and culturally appropriate, trained facilitators and Inuit and members of the Labrador Métis Nation helped organize and facilitate the workshops.
- The Flat Bay Indian Band in St. Georges -Stephenville East: $21,000 to allow for the expansion and exchange of traditional expertise and resources across the Flat Bay band membership. An interactive website about violence and traditional preventative and healing solutions was developed to engage and educate the membership. A co-ordinator was hired to generate website content, including new, relevant material, and to compile local and online resources.

- The St. John's Native Friendship Centre: $23,000 to reach out to young Aboriginal women and children dealing with historical exposure to substance abuse problems, childhood physical and sexual abuse, as well as residential school survivors and those at high risk for suicide. The program's activities promoted personal development and healing through a Medicine Wheel approach, balancing physical, emotional, spiritual and intellectual well-being. It based its principles on education, acceptance, respect, trust and health, and it will support greater reliance on traditional values, rituals and healing ceremonies for dealing with the underlying problems of family and community breakdown.
- The Nunatsiavut Government: A total of $22,500 to complete four violence prevention projects -
 - Aboriginal Women for Tomorrow ($7,000): a series of workshops designed to empower women by building leadership and business skills and fostering greater participation in their community and the Canadian economy.

 - Women's Community Grants ($2,500): a start up fund for women interested in forming a women's group. By having a group in each community, women will be able to connect and establish a network of women's groups, and help support Ananare Katiget Tumingit.
 - Sexual Assault Crisis Presentations ($3,000): presentations by the Newfoundland and Labrador Sexual Assault Crisis and Prevention Centre will provide awareness of the issues at the community level.
- The Newfoundland Aboriginal Women's Network (NAWN): $30,000 to support the project "Empowering Aboriginal Women; Influencing Community Wellness." This project will help create awareness around the issue of violence in Aboriginal communities by having the women who are trained as facilitators implement culturally-based crime prevention and awareness workshops in their communities.
- The Rigolet Partnership Against Family Violence: $60,000 to aid with the shelter renovations project.

These issues are:

- violence prevention
- earned income and employment

The implementation of a comprehensive government wide 6 year Plan of Action to address this issue remains an important tool to undertake the necessary legislative and policy changes that can make meaningful differences on this matter in the lives of residents of our Province. The Plan is also important to ensure we undertake community based as well as province wide educational and research activities to better understand the attitudes, behaviors and make short and long term changes that can prevent and improve the situation of interpersonal violence in Newfoundland and Labrador.

Goal: By March 31, 2010, the Violence Prevention Initiative will continue to implement the Taking Action Against Violence 2006-2012 plan.

7.0 Opportunities and Challenges Ahead

7.1 Opportunities

Collaborating with Atlantic Canada's Status of Women Offices: Status of Women Ministers in the Atlantic provinces and their officials have committed to strengthening work on federal-provincial matters and working together to:

- advance the status of Aboriginal women;
- better understand the sex trade in Atlantic Canada and the employment protection needs associated with foreign domestic workers; and
- promote the negative impacts of social media on the development and well-being of younger girls.

Prevention of Violence Against Older Adults: The development of training tools for professionals and others who serve older adults was completed in 2009-10. There is now a need to work with representatives of the four Regional Health Authorities, as well as other target audiences, to identify the best delivery mechanisms for this information for their staff and programs.

Empirical Research and the Evaluation of the Violence Prevention Initiative: Continued efforts to undertake Newfoundland and Labrador-specific empirical research on matters relating to violence prevention. The VPI Respect Women social marketing campaign evaluations determined it was effective in changing attitudes and actions relating to the prevention of male violence against women in Newfoundland and Labrador. The completion and use of this research, and the completion of the Provincial Survey of Attitudes Towards Violence, will be a significant accomplishment in 2010. During the upcoming period, the results of the research will be used to inform future plans and evaluation for the development of the next six-year plan of action to prevent violence against women and other vulnerable populations in NL.

Enhanced Internal Policy Services: WPO will continue its representation on various intergovernmental and inter-jurisdictional working groups, which continues to be an excellent opportunity to have women's needs included in governmental policy, planning, and strategic directions in ongoing work relating to poverty reduction, healthy aging, women and the justice system, women's training and education, women's health, and youth retention and attraction.

Advancing the Status of Aboriginal Women: This will remain a priority of WPO, with work continuing in the following areas:

- co-chairing a working committee with Aboriginal women and the Department of Labrador and Aboriginal Affairs to develop responses to the recommendations made at the National Aboriginal Women's Summit held in Corner Brook in June 2007;
- work on developing a culturally-appropriate training module for gender-based analysis for Aboriginal women's issues;
- facilitate provincial conferences; and
- increase its focus on Aboriginal women's access to positions of leadership.

7.2 Challenges

Preventing Violence: The VPI will continue to work with government and community partners to ensure that the people of Newfoundland and Labrador receive factual information about the root causes of violence and its different forms and impacts. Many myths and misconceptions exist around violence, the perpetrators, the severity of violence perpetrated against women and other vulnerable populations, and who the victims are.

EI Maternity and Paternity Benefits Modernization: The Ministers Responsible for the Status of Women in Atlantic Canada will continue to bring forward the need for the modernization of maternity and parental benefits under the Employment Insurance program to the Federal Government.

Advancing Employment Opportunities for Women in Natural Resources and Non-Traditional Occupations: While there has been an interest by employers to advance women into non-traditional occupations due to labor shortages, the recent downturn of the global economy has changed some priorities for businesses and reduced the focus on attracting women into these roles and industries. The Provincial Government's work to advance women into the areas of trades, technology, science and engineering occupations where women are underrepresented will remain challenging as structural and systemic attitude changes are required. Creative approaches to government practices can support changes in the general business community.

Meeting the Policy Needs of Government: As more departments and agencies are becoming aware of the differing impact of policies and programs about women, they are calling upon WPO to assist them in policy and program development. WPO is pleased with this development, and considers this work to be one of its primary tasks. However, given that women's issues span the full-range of policy development within government, from employment to child care to health to income, the demand for WPO services continues to grow and more policy capacity is required to serve an expanding client base.
